Splat!

Equipment: None

Adult support needed: No

Number of children: 10+

How to play:

The children form a circle.

One child is chosen to be the leader and stands in the middle of the circle.

The leader holds his hands together and then randomly points them towards one of the players in the circle. The leader shouts 'Splat!'

The child who was 'splatted' must duck down quickly.

The players on either side must immediately duel by pointing with their hands towards each other and shouting 'Splat!' The first child to point and say 'Splat!' wins the duel and stays in the game. The other is out unless the child in the middle did not duck out of the way quickly enough. Children who are out sit down (or stand back.)

The game continues until there are just two players.

They then have a back to back duel taking three paces forward before turning to 'Splat' each other.

The winner becomes the new leader.

A large, stylized word 'Splat!' in a blue, bubbly font. The letters are slightly overlapping, creating a dynamic and energetic appearance.
